

This vs That: Explanation with Exercises

Instructions : Fill in the blanks with either “this” or “that” based on the appropriate context.

1. I can't believe _____ happened so quickly!
2. Is _____ the new smartphone you were talking about?
3. Take a look at _____ amazing painting in the art gallery.
4. _____ is the last time I'm going to remind you to submit your report.
5. Can you pass me _____ cup of coffee on the table?
6. _____ weather is perfect for a picnic in the park.
7. I'm not a fan of _____ type of music; I prefer something more upbeat.

Answers

1. I can't believe this happened so quickly!
Here, the use of “this” suggests that the event being referred to is something immediate, recent, and probably still fresh in the speaker's mind.
2. Is that the new smartphone you were talking about?
The use of “that” suggests a bit of distance, as if the smartphone is not immediately in front of the speaker. It's also commonly used when referring to something being introduced or shown for the first time.
3. Take a look at that amazing painting in the art gallery.
Similar to the previous example, the use of “that” suggests that the painting is not immediately close to the speaker. It's like pointing out something a bit more distant.
4. This is the last time I'm going to remind you to submit your report.
Here, the use of “this” emphasizes the immediacy and finality of the reminder. It's as if the speaker is saying, “I'm reminding you right now, and this is the last time”.
5. Can you pass me that cup of coffee on the table?
In this context, the use of “that” suggests that the cup of coffee is a bit more distant from the speaker, perhaps across the table.
6. This weather is perfect for a picnic in the park.
The use of “this” emphasizes the current weather conditions, suggesting that the weather is favorable for a picnic right now.
7. I'm not a fan of that type of music; I prefer something more upbeat.
The use of “that” implies a bit of distance or detachment from the type of music being discussed, as if it's not the speaker's preferred style.